

THINGS THAT TEMPT FILL ALL THE SHOPS

Fall Displays for Women Include So Many Things It Is Impossible Not to Buy.

NECKWEAR MADE FROM IRISH LACE

Beautiful Accessories Add to Fascination of Miliady-Colored Hose to Be Proper Thing.

Every novelty for feminine apparel that will catch the eye and rob the purse may be found in the local shops which are beginning to be crowded with shoppers returning from seashore and mountain.

One is kept in a perfect whirl trying to decide what to get and what not to get. Choice is difficult when the alluring contents of even one little shop are spread before one's eyes, and the only escape is to clinch one's teeth and fly out of the stores. Temptation is no name for the craving to buy that enters one's soul at this season, and small wonder. The dealers seem to have entered into a conspiracy with the tempter inside to wheedle folks into spending all their pin money.

There are the most fascinating accessories for the neck.

Irish lace is being shown in every design of collar, and made into the dangle little tassels now being worn about the neck as an added bit of fascination. These ties are frequently and more popularly made of gilt and silver cord, finished with a tassel in the same material.

Some are made of velvet in bright shades and others in silk.

The high-under-the-ear collars are as much in evidence as they were in the summer, and the girl with the long neck again is in her glory.

Barrettes for the back of the hair are growing larger as each day passes and are beginning to look like small bread trays.

Colored hose are peeping at one from every shop window and giving every indication that the smart girl will risk pneumonia by being true to her pumps through the winter season.

One of the novelties of the season is the wide publicity and display given to the long sleeve and the continued popularity of the long kid glove. What is one going to do? Have Fashion's edict and wear elbow sleeves in one's theater gown or bid adieu to this comfort and order short gloves?

If you are including a voile suit in your fall wardrobe, add a brilliant, scotch plaid silk pocket to wear under it. They are new and fascinating.

KATHERINE LENOX.

WEDDING SUPERSTITIONS ARE MOST NUMEROUS OF ALL

There are probably more superstitions about weddings than about any other event in life, and, foolish as they are, they are rather interesting.

How ridiculous it would be to put credence in the fact that no bride may be happily married unless she finds a spider on her wedding morning. If that were a universal belief it would decidedly pay to raise the hideous creatures just to sell them to superstitious brides-to-be.

Then, again, it is said that the bridegroom should always carry a miniature horseshoe in his pocket, so he may have good luck.

Unhappy marriages, the superstitious think, are caused by a telegram received on the way to the church, by either bride or groom, dropping the ring during the ceremony, or a marriage at sea.

After all, there are lots of rules that the bride will hear much of the last two days before the marriage, but she is sure to have good luck if she complies with the good old belief that she should wear at her wedding: Something old and something new, Something borrowed and something blue.

COATS FOR YOUNG GIRLS MADE ON SIMPLER BOX MODELS

Girls' coats are made up on the simpler of the box models, having conventional sleeves. Few of them are developed in black, and not many in dark blue, as there seems to be a tendency toward the using of the new shades which figure so prominently among the winter suits. These include the deep purple of the Concord grape, the dried prune, and the wild plum, the various catnip shades, the reddish browns, the mahogany reds, and those having a deeper tone. These colors come in heavy, smooth-finished cloths of fine texture, and many of the coats developed from them are lined with white or delicately tinted satin, for the young girl's long separate wrap is usually the one which she wears to dancing school over her lingerie or silk frock.

TASSELS AT ELBOWS.

Among the new tricks in trimming is the placing of a long, heavy, pendant tassel exactly at the elbow. This is not done on a long sleeve, but is added to a short one worn for evening.

BELIEVES IN EXERCISE

MISS GRACE GEORGE,

Star in "Divorcons," at the New National, Who Is an Expert Fencer, Horsewoman, and Basketball Player.

Anyone who has seen Grace George in her delightful and dainty conception of Sardou's heroine in "Divorcons" at the National Theater this week will realize with some difficulty that she is one of the most athletic members of the theatrical profession. Miss George believes that the mind and body should be cultivated at the same time, however, and she gives quite as much time to one as to the other.

Miss George is regarded as one of the best women fencers in her profession. She is an expert with the foils and plays basketball with as much ease as one ordinarily plays tennis. Golf and horseback riding share with these other diversions.

"The brain is simply a portion of the body," Miss George said this morning. "The two grow and are developed together. One cannot be healthy without the other."

"The Greeks excelled in literature and oratory when they excelled in running and throwing the discus. This may be said of other nations. When I was growing up, I came to realize that I should never be able to use my intellect as I wanted unless my physical self kept pace, and so I determined to take advantage of every opportunity to develop both together."

AT THE BEACH.

GRASSHOPPERS NOW FOOD FOR THIS MAN

Once Lived on Milk, But Says Insects Are Fine Eating.

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 6.—Countless millions of grasshoppers have invaded Franklin county, doing much damage to crops of all kinds. But Orrin Woodbury, nature man, of Temple, welcomes their appearance, for he eats them, nicely fried in batter. Like St. John, who ate locusts and wild honey, Mr. Woodbury, who once lived on a milk diet seven years to change his body and cleanse it, lives for the present on "hopper fry." His procedure is about as follows:

Large bed sheets are spread on the grass and soon they are literally covered with hoppers of all sizes and kinds. A hasty gathering up of the cloths always results in a good catch of fine, juicy grasshoppers, which are killed by passing them through a flame that also removes their wings and legs. Then Chef Woodbury prepares a rich and creamy batter, in which he dumps the hoppers. Soon arises an odor from the frying pan that even doubting Thomases admit is pleasing.

"Are they good?" asks Mr. Woodbury. "Well, try a few and see."

But no one can be induced to try.

THE RETORT COURTEOUS.

Suitor—Sir, I want to marry your daughter.

Parent—Can you support her in the style to which she has been accustomed?

Suitor—If I couldn't do better than that I'd be ashamed to ask her.—Baltimore American.

Fascinating Brooklyn Maids Say They Have Suffered Mental Anguish at Seeing Forms Displayed on Postal Cards.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Mental anguish to the extent of $20,000 is what two fascinating Brooklyn maids say they have suffered by having their photographs, in bathing costume, printed on picture postal cards.

They are Miss Hattie King, a dashing, nimble brunette of twenty, who lives at 79 Stanhope, and Miss Elsie Lillian Gastmeyer, a dreamy, buxom blonde of more tender years, of 68 Bleeker street, Brooklyn.

Each, in a suit instituted before Justice Maddox, in the supreme court of Kings county, demands $10,000 from Andreas C. Bosseman, a wealthy dealer in novelties, at 469 Broadway, Manhattan.

Real Name Kunz. Miss King, whose name in the complaint reads Miss Hattie Kunz, used to work in the novelty shop, according to Bosseman, where she earned $15 a week. Miss Gastmeyer was employed in a branch of the establishment at 415 Broadway.

They want the money to pay for "anxiety of mind, humiliation and mortification," basing their suit on chapter 132, laws 1930, State of New York, which is an act to prevent the unauthorized use of the name or picture of any person for the purposes of trade.

It is by reason of Mr. Bosseman's "knowingly" willfully and maliciously persisting in using said picture cards, although he was "remonstrated" with that Hattie and Elsie and their guardians demand $20,000 satisfaction. They have been exposed to "contempt and ridicule," says the complaint, although it would, indeed, be an inhuman person who could gaze upon their pictures with other than sentiments of delight.

Admits They Are "Stunners."

Bosseman himself admits that the girls are "stunners." He says that Miss King brought him the negatives and that he paid for them with a check.

"They had 'em taken down at Atlantic City or Coney or some place, and I thought they'd make a good card. And say, now I come to think of it, Hattie made out the order to have them printed in Germany. Yes, sir; she did. Wrote the order herself. Of course she knew what they were to be used for."

Mr. Bosseman's counsel, Mr. Marks, in a demurrer, sets forth that there has been no violation of the statute because the acts claimed took place outside of the State, and furthermore that the pictures were not used for advertising purposes. The card itself is merchandise, he says, and it is simply a case of buying and selling.

Second Fair Maid—I can't guess. Why?

First Fair Maid—They are easier to catch after a full meal.—Smart Set.

THE WHEREFORE.

"How did you come to write that thrilling story, so full of absorbing heart interest?"

"I answered the eminent author."
